DOGS AND MOTOR TRUCKS DEBATED IN CITY COUNCIL

Commissioners Deferred Action On Several Other Questions

Dogs and trucks formed the chief topics for debate at last evening's meeting of the city council and of the several matters presented, action was largely deferred until next week. Commissioner Brooks presented an ordinance amending the ordinance pertaining to dogs within the city limits. The amendment provided that dogs permitted to run at large and without city license tags be taken to the dog pound and detained for a period not to exceed 24 hours and then to be destroyed. The old ordinance set the time at 72 hours.

Commissioner George Campbell raised an objection to the time limit and strongly held out for a 48-hour clause in the amended ordinance as well as a reduction in the price of the dog tags of from one dollar to 25 cents. After some discussion both suggestions were adopted by the council. Members of the council were informed that numerous complaints had been registered by citizens whose flower and vegetable gardens have either been destroyed or badly damaged by stray dogs.

Want Trucks Barred.
A petition was presented to the council bearing the signatures of 44 citizens residing on Galena avenue between Third and Seventh streets asking that motor truck traffic on that section be barred. E. J. Ferguson, who presented the petition, spoke in its defense and told the council that if other streets of the city were opened to truck traffic that the petition would be immediately withdrawn.

While the members of the council were discussing the situation, the mayor called the attention of the commission to the loud rumbling of a heavy truck going past the city building on Second street at the time and stated that this particular vehicle was one of the least noisy type and that the churches had protested against the noise. Action was deferred by the council until next Tuesday, according to the mayor, a field day will be held for both trucks and buses.

Two appropriation ordinances were presented to the council, one by Commissioner George Campbell of the Department of Finance and another by Commissioner Brooks of the Department of Public Health and Safety. Both were tabled for one week before being considered.

Asks Reimbursement.
County Judge William Leech appeared before the council in behalf of Emil Schertner, 211 West Boyd street, asking that his client be reimbursed by the city for $423.93 expended in bringing his property to street level. Judge Leech asked a reasonable settlement and the council will investigate.

Commissioner H. S. Nichols presented an ordinance requiring concrete bases for lot markers and tomb stones in Oakwood cemetery. W. J. Barry, former superintendent of the cemetery, strongly opposed the measure and it was one that was permitted to be deferred until next week.

The application of the Mid West Petroleum Corporation for a permit to construct and operate a gasoline service station at the southwest corner of Peoria avenue and West River street, accompanied by a bond of $10,000, was granted. The application of the same company for a permit to erect an electric sign was referred to the Commissioner of Public Health and Safety with power to act.

The application of the Trucken-brod Motor Company for a permit to erect a sign at 90-92 Ottawa avenue was referred to the same Commissioner.

Soft Drink Licenses.
The council accepted and filed the invitation by Dixon lodge, No. 727, L. O. O. M. to attend the public open house meeting and entertainment at the Moose hall Friday evening.

City Clerk Blake Grover reported that 59 applications had been received for soft drink licenses, and in his report named W. H. Fleming and Emma Lambert as delinquent. Commissioner Brooks will investigate the remaining dispensers. Commissioner John Loftus opposed granting a soft drink license for a root beer stand on Seventh street and Ottawa avenue, until such time as promissory which he told the council were made by the owners last season, relative to the upkeep of the grounds and drives, were fulfilled. The other applications were granted.

Mayor Dixon voted in the negative when the council voted to allow $4,286.26 semi-monthly bills, but did not explain his vote.

VERDICT OF SUICIDE

Bloomington, Ill., May 18—(AP)—LeRoy H. Hawkins was declared a suicide last night by a coroner's jury and was buried today. His body was found in his automobile Sunday, a rifle wound in the head. A friend, Lillian Estes, told the coroner's jury that Hawkins told her Saturday he would never see her again.

SECURED DIVORCE
In letters to friends in this city advising them of her securing a divorce in an Iowa court from Samuel Lehman of this city, the former Dixon young matron advises that she was awarded her maiden name, Margaret Oakley, by the court's decree.

CLAIMS RUM TRUCK
Earl Pickrel, representing the Windish Motor Sales Company of Galesburg, came to Dixon yesterday afternoon and reclaimed a Chevrolet truck which was held by Sheriff Richardson. The truck was seized with a cargo of about 650 gallons of alcohol, while being driven through Lee county on state highway route 70 last Saturday evening by George Richards, who claimed Peoria as his home.

SEEKS INFORMATION
The Telegraph is requested by Maud Preston Whitney, 2121 S. Eighth St., DeKalb, as to where she can secure a copy of "The Recollections of the Pioneers of the DeKalb," which she says was edited by the club women of the county in commemoration of the Chicago World Fair of 1892-93. If any reader of The Telegraph has such information he will confer a favor on this paper by communicating with the DeKalb lady.

NURSES GRADUATED
Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Warner and family, Mr. and Mrs. Webster Poole and Miss Bertha Fry motored to Rockford last evening and attended the graduation of a class of eight nurses from the Rockford hospital where they have been in training. Miss Dorothy Warner of this city, member of the high school graduating class of 1929, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warner, was a member of the class of graduates. She has enrolled in the Cook county hospital in Chicago where she will take a special course of instruction. The graduation exercises were held in the Court Street Methodist church in Rockford.

BIG CLOCK STARTED
W. W. Trein has again wound up the big eight-day clock in the display window of his jewelry store on First street and Hennepin avenue. The names of all the members of the 1932 high school graduating class appear on the large dial and the clock started running Monday morning. When the clock stops next week, the two members of the class, whose names the hands point will receive Gruen wrist watches as graduation presents. The names of the girl members of the class appear on the outside of the dial and the boy graduates on the inside. The plan was tried out last spring by Mr. Trein and attracted a great deal of interest.

WERE GIVEN QUARTERS
Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Miles and Mr. and Mrs. Winifred Coghlan of Chicago, two young couples, enroute to Seattle, Wash., were taken in custody this morning at 2:30 by Officer John Bohnstiel who found them sleeping in a building at the Grand Detour plow plant. The women, who claimed to be sisters, were attired in men's clothing. Mrs. Coghlan wearing a complete full dress suit. They were accommodated for the remainder of the night.

OHIO KIDNAPING HAD INSPIRATION IN LINDY TRAGEDY

Baby Taken From Its Crib: Found Thrown Behind Fence

Steuenville, O., May 18—(AP)—The two-year-old son of an unemployed steel worker was kidnaped and thrown behind a fence last night in a futile extortion plot which authorities said probably was inspired by the Lindbergh case.

The little boy, Eugene Swearingin, was found behind the fence half an hour after being stolen from his crib. The discovery was made after the 200 residents of Warrenton, near here, where the Swearingins lived, turned out to search, but was not reported until today.

The child had a bruise over his left eye, suffered either when the kidnapers struck him or as they tossed him behind the fence, authorities said. The fence was only 500 yards from the Swearingin home.

The father, George Swearingin, said the kidnaping was threatened by someone who sent him three notes in the last two weeks, demanding $500. Since Swearingin unemployed several months, was without funds, he had been keeping a close watch of the baby, one of seven children.

YOUTH IS ACCUSED
Hoopston, Ill., May 18—(AP)—George King, 25-year-old son of a well known Iroquois family, was arrested last night on a charge of writing a threatening letter to William McFarren, wealthy banker.

McFarren received a letter yesterday demanding $2,000 in gold and silver and threatening death to his family. He was instructed to put the money in a box and toss it from his automobile at a point a mile south of Clansia Park Illinois.

The banker followed instructions while Sheriffs of Vermilion and Iroquois counties watched last night. King is alleged to have driven up soon after McFarren left and the police said they closed in on him after he picked up the box.

King denied sending the letter. Police said they found green paper similar to that used in the note both in King's home and in his car. The letter said a gang of ten would kill the banker's entire family if the demand were not met.

Guards were posted around the McFarren home as a precautionary measure but officers said they were convinced that King had no accomplices in the plot.

ALLEGED PLOT KEEPS EDITOR OUT OF STATES

McLean's Attorney In Ouster Suit Makes Charge Today

Washington, May 18—(AP)—An attorney for Edward B. McLean, whose removal as co-trustee of his father's estate is sought in the District of Columbia Supreme Court, charged today in open court that there was a conspiracy to prevent McLean's return to this country by the threat of a "white slave" charge.

McLean is now in France. Justice Jennings Bailey, however, overruled the lawyer, Julius Peyser, when he sought to introduce evidence checks which he said would support his assertions.

Elizabeth Poe, a member of the editorial staff of the Washington Post, of which McLean is president, was on the witness stand at the time. Peyser said the checks were in her possession.

He argued that since other witnesses had testified that McLean's absence from this country had interfered with the administration of the estate, that he should be allowed to show there was a concerted effort to prevent his return.

Justice Bailey said he could not permit introduction of the material, since it was not relevant.

Attorneys for the three minor children of McLean, who through their mother, Mrs. Evelyn Walsh McLean, are seeking their father's removal as co-trustee, rested their case today.

S. Dakota Banker Shot By Bandits

Ipswich, S. D., May 18—(AP)—Three bandits held up the Bank of Ipswich this morning, shot the president, Plin Beebe, perhaps fatally, kidnaped the cashier and fled with an undetermined amount of money. Aberdeen police and deputy sheriffs were reported in pursuit of the bandits.

Admits Negotiations Were Hoax

I never knew such people that I named to Colonel Linbergh and they were creatures of a distorted mind, with the exception of Morris Truesdale, who had no connection with the crime.

I exceedingly regret that I caused Colonel Linbergh and others any inconvenience and wish it were in my power to correct my wrong.

In justice to my wife and two children I trust that it is in the power of Colonel Linbergh to forgive the inconvenience, worry and injustice I did him in his time of grief.

This statement has been brought about by the realization of the wrong I have done.

Witness.
John H. Curtis

Photo shows facsimile of confession that John H. Curtis signed May 17 telling how his contacts with kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby, were creations of his imagination. Curtis, Dean Peacock and Admiral Bursage made several trips in connection with the investigation of the kidnapers, and Curtis now claims that he furnished the clues, and that the other partners believed them to be true.

SMITH PROGRAM "FAVORABLE TO THE PRESIDENT"

New York Leader Talks Over Situation With Chief Executive

Washington, May 18—(AP)—An aftermath of debate and partisan exchanges in Congress as well as evidence of deep interest at the White House have followed presentation of a detailed program by Alfred E. Smith for meeting the present national emergencies.

Senator Moses, (R., N. H.) had hardly issued a statement yesterday in which he held Smith's program "clearly akin" to the one President Hoover has been advocating to Congress, before Senator Tydings (D., Md.) took the floor to term the assertion "ludicrous" and to maintain emphatically that Smith was far from accord with the President.

He argued that while Smith had courage to explain on every point where he stood, Mr. Hoover's views on many questions, notably prohibition, were hard to learn.

But at the White House, where Mr. Hoover scrupulously maintained public silence on it, others disclosed that the Chief Executive concurred in parts of the plan outlined Monday by his 1928 Democratic rival, and objected pointedly to others. A particular objection mentioned was to Mr. Smith's statement that the administration idea of having the Reconstruction Finance Corporation lend money to states for relief would be ineffective.

Besides discussion of the program around the cabinet table, newspapers were told by King-land Macy, New York Republican leader, that Mr. Hoover had talked over with him at lunch. He gave his own view that the Smith address was "pretty favorable for the President."

Smith advocated adoption of the sales tax, radical appropriation cuts, authority for the President to reorganize government activities, a halt on veterans' legislation and revision downward of existing benefits, bonds for public works to stimulate business, authority for the President to adjust the war debt situation, and liberalizing legal definition of intoxication pending determination of party stands on modification or repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Former Dixon Boy Was Honor Guest

The following clipping from the South Bend, Ind., Tribune of May 16, is of interest locally, as it concerns Gus Bondi, former high school football star who for the past 18 months has been employed by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company at South Bend.

"The employees of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company held a dinner Saturday evening in the dining room of the Oliver hotel, honoring Ben Miller, who has been appointed manager of the Elgin, Ill., district and also August L. Bondi, recently appointed assistant manager of the South Bend branch. Mr. Bondi was graduated from the University of Notre Dame in the class of 1930. Places were arranged for 60 at tables which were decorated with the season's flowers. The evening was spent informally."

Former Rockford Banker Convicted

Rockford, Ill., May 18—(AP)—A Circuit Court jury today returned a verdict convicting Evans A. Anderson, former cashier of the closed Security National Bank, of embezzling $17,900 from funds of the Security First Mortgage Company, the mortgage company.

Truman Johnson, former president of both the bank and the mortgage company, pleaded guilty to embezzling mortgage company funds.

RITES FOR MRS. EVELYN STREET THURSDAY AT 2

Pioneer Temperance, Sunday School Worker Dead

The funeral of Mrs. Evelyn B. Street, whose death was announced in Tuesday's evening Telegraph, will be held at her late home, 322 Madison avenue, at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, Rev. Aubrey Shannan Moore of Evanston, former pastor of the Dixon M. E. church, officiating, and with burial in Oakwood.

Evelyn Broadwell Street was born in Gaines, N. Y., March 19, 1845, the daughter of Moses and Marietta Dolly Broadwell. She was educated at Albion Academy and in Rochester, N. Y. and taught school in Gaines until the time of her marriage to Horace Street in 1870.

Leaving New York Mr. and Mrs. Street settled first in Nachusa, Ill., removing to Dixon in 1881.

Mrs. Street was very active in temperance and Sunday school work and older residents of the community will remember her work in the Loyd Temperance League and the Sunday schools in Dementown. She is survived by two sons, Lester Street of Dixon and Horace Street of Minneapolis.

A daughter, Mrs. Marietta Price of Dixon; and two grand children, Evelyn and Alice, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Street. Her husband preceded her in death in 1910.

White House Cops Got False Alarm

Washington, May 18—(AP)—A truck load of peacefully-inclined war veterans which headed today toward the White House brought an extra police guard scurrying there after a telephone call had described the men as "demonstrators."

About 25 in all, the veterans riding in a truck labeled "We Want Our Bonus" parked near the White House but did nothing more than chat with the police and newspapermen who surrounded them.

The group traveled from Chattanooga, Tenn., as members of Post 1289 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Cheerful, although tired, members of it smilingly said they did not intend to go back to Chattanooga until "we get our bonus money."

The veterans made no effort to see President Hoover, laughingly declaring they would come back later when they had a more regular appointment.

Wright Resigned Two Receiverships

State Senator Harry G. Wright has resigned the receivership of the Ambrosy St. Bank and the Farmers' State Bank of Ambrosy, in order that he may devote his time to his campaign for State Auditor, for which office he is the Republican nominee. His assistant E. W. Varty has been named by State Auditor Oscar Nelson to succeed him as receiver of the two Lee county banks.

OWNERS BURNED LINER REPORT 91 AS MISSING

Fire Alarms Drowned In Gay Updoo On the Doomed Vessel

Paris, May 18—(AP)—Ninety-one persons who were aboard the French motorship Georges Philparr when she burned Monday off Italian Somaliland still are unaccounted for, the owners of the vessel announced today.

A total of 676 were known to have been rescued, the announcement said.

Hundreds of relatives crowded the offices of the company today scanning the lists of the rescued. As far as was known no Americans were on the lists, officials said.

The list of those rescued showed the following names apparently not French: Mr. and Mrs. Jordan; Mr. and Mrs. O'Neill and two children; and Mrs. Van Pelt, three children and a maid.

UPROAR OF GAITY

Aden, Arabia, May 18—(AP)—There was such an uproar of gaiety aboard the French motorship Georges Philparr that when the firebells sounded Monday passengers failed to realize their significance, survivors of the burned vessel declared today.

Shipping agencies officials feared that the number of persons lost might total 300. The ship burned at sea off Italian Somaliland.

Survivors said that all during the homeward voyage from the Far East there had been much gaiety and dancing and when the firebells rang out, hours before its occupants were picked up by the British steamer Mahsud. The Mahsud and the Contractor, also a British ship, brought 254 survivors here yesterday.

French Heroine
Mlle. Berthe Helbort, a French stewardess, emerged as one of the heroes of the disaster. She rushed about the blazing liner trying to find the parents of a little girl who had been terribly burned. Her efforts were fruitless. Later the child died in a lifeboat.

After the stewardess had been taken aboard the Mahsud she ministered to badly burned passengers despite the fact that she was suffering severely from shock and exposure. Now she is a hospital patient.

The Georges Philparr still was burning today, her position being approximately thirty miles north of Cape Guardafui, Italian Somaliland.

Son Of Foundler Of Wheaton Dead

Wheaton, Ill., May 18—(AP)—The Rev. James M. Wheaton, 83, son of Jesse C. Wheaton, founder of Wheaton College, died at his home here yesterday.

Mr. Wheaton was born here. His father moved from Connecticut to Illinois in 1832, with members of the family of the late Elbert H. Gary, the steel magnate.

The Rev. Mr. Wheaton was a graduate of Northwestern University, and was one of the three surviving members of the class of 1878. He was a retired Methodist minister.

Kidnaped Streator Man Returns Home

Streator, Ill., May 18—(AP)—Frank Cingrati, reputedly connected with liquor interests, was reported last night by his wife as kidnaped by five men but returned home early today.

His only comment to police, who had scoured the countryside all night long, was that he was "out riding with some friends."

SENATE REJECTS PROPOSALS FOR LEGAL BEER TAX

Bingham and Tydings Lose Fight To Allow Brewing

Washington, May 18—(AP)—The Senate today refused to legalize beer.

The first Senate roll calls for beer since prohibition brought overwhelming defeat.

The main vote was on an amendment by Senator Tydings (D., Md.) to the revenue bill to legalize 2.75 beer and tax it 25 cents a gallon to help finance a $1,500,000 public construction program.

Just previously the Senate had turned down—60 to 23—a proposal by Bingham (R., Conn.) to alter the Tydings amendment to make it allow four per cent alcoholic content.

Eleven Democrats voted with 12 Republicans for the Bingham four per cent amendment.

These Favored Beer
The Republicans were: Barbour, Bingham, Blaine, Davis, Glenn, Kean, LaFollette, Metcalf, Moses, Oddie, Reed and Walter.

Democrats were: Brewsard, Bulow, Coolidge, Copeland, Hawes, Lewis, Long, Wagner, Tydings, Walsh of Massachusetts and Wheeler.

The vote rejecting 2.75 per cent beer was 61 to 24.

Over in the House a vote will be had Monday on whether the O'Connor-Hull bill to levy a tax of three cents a pint on beer of 2.75 per cent alcoholic content by volume will be taken up for consideration.

Meanwhile, the House Agriculture committee approved the Jones bill to restrict short selling on commodity exchanges and a judiciary subcommittee favorably reported the Cochran bill for death penalty or life imprisonment for kidnapers.

Eugene Meyer, Governor of the Federal Reserve Board, opposed the Goldborough dollar stabilization measure in testimony to the Senate Banking committee. He contended the board was without power to restore the 1926 level of commodity prices.

Question Adjournment
Before the House Ways and Means committee, Chairman O'Brien of the Tariff Commission said enactment of the Hawley bill to adjust tariff rates upward against nations with depreciated currency would be a "great mistake."

There still was doubt today that final adjournment would be possible by June 10, but hopes were definitely on the rise. There was as yet no definite progress on the economy measure which must adjust the tax bill in the balanced budget task, nor was there sign of agreement to make possible enactment of the generally desired unemployment relief program, yet expectations were that both matters could resolve themselves in time.

Last night's session, running until 9:30 P. M., was devoted to the beer debate resumed today. Tydings argued legalization of beer was the way to provide against want and unemployment next winter.

Senator Sheppard (D., Tex.) the prohibitionist leader, in a brief but emphatic reply denounced alcohol as injurious and warned the Senate that no member could vote to legalize beer without violating his oath to the constitution.

Thousands Attend Family's Funeral

Saybrook, Ill., May 18—(AP)—All nine members of the Reese family rested together today in the Oak Grove cemetery at nearby LeRoy.

Funeral services were held yesterday for Mrs. Mattie Reese and six of her children, killed Sunday in a grade crossing crash. Her husband and her eldest son died previously. One thousand persons attended the rites.

Vermont's Votes Go To Roosevelt

Burlington, Va., May 18—(AP)—Vermont's eight votes in the Democratic national convention were pledged today to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York as the party's nominee for President.

The State Democratic convention elected 12 candidates to the national convention and instructed them to vote for the New York Governor.

COURT ORDER NEEDED
Springfield, Ill., May 18—(AP)—Attorney General Oscar E. Carroll today advised State Auditor Oscar Nelson that State Banks which have come into receivership may pledge the bank's assets for a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation only upon permission granted by a court.

Such permission by a court, he added, would be sufficient answer to dissenting creditors of the bank.

CONTRACT LET

Springfield, Ill., May 18—(AP)—Henry Kohn, Director of the State Department of Purchases and Construction, today awarded the contract for construction of the superstructure of the Smith highway bridge over the Illinois waterway at Channahon, Ill., to Powers-Thompson Construction Company of Joliet, Ill., on a bid of $51,247.

CHARGE MAY BE SWORN TO TODAY AGAINST CURTIS

"Jasie" Spends Day In Rogues' Galleries Without Result

BULLETIN.
Washington, May 18—(AP)—The Cochran bill providing for the death penalty or life imprisonment for kidnapers was approved today by a House Judiciary subcommittee.

BULLETIN.
Hopewell, N. J., May 18—(AP)—Police disclosed today that a woman was helping them determine the true and complete facts concerning the activities of John Hughes Curtis, fake negotiator with the kidnapers of the murdered Lindbergh baby.

The mid-afternoon statement of Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, Superintendent of State Police follows:

"Miss Ruth Gay came voluntarily to the headquarters with investigator from this point last night and has been actively cooperating with the police in an effort to determine the actual facts of Mr. Curtis' activities and to vindicate herself so far as any inferred implications of her connection with this deception might exist."

"Miss Gay is being questioned and a statement is being taken which will be investigated and checked."

"There has been nothing developed up to this time which would indicate that Miss Gay was knowingly involved with any intention of deceiving either Col. Lindbergh or the authorities."

Schwarzkopf's statement made the first mention there has been during the investigation of the name of Miss Ruth Gay.

Investigation disclosed that Miss Gay's name had been mentioned in one of the various statements Curtis made to police before he was shown and typed out with his own hands the former confession that he had perpetrated a hoax upon the Lindberghs.

In that statement Curtis said that Miss Gay and Edwin K. Bruce of Elmira, N. Y., were with him during alleged negotiations to sell his story to a newspaper.

BULLETIN.
Mt. Vernon, N. Y., May 18—(AP)—Dr. John F. Condon, "Jasie," Lindbergh case negotiator, left police headquarters here this afternoon, after examining 1900 roguish gallery photographs without finding a clue to the kidnapers with whom he had negotiations. The survey was made with Chief of Detectives Michael Silverstein. Dr. Condon indicated that his intensive scrutiny of the pictures gave "no encouragement."

BULLETIN.
Hopewell, N. J., May 18—(AP)—Action against John Hughes Curtis, Norfolk ship builder, who confessed to perpetrating a cruel hoax on the parents of the murdered Lindbergh baby, was deferred today pending the results of continuing examination.

Gov. Moore said it was probable that Curtis would be arraigned today after a complaint had been sworn out against him by the police. A state charge, if made, the Governor said, would probably be that of making false statements which in effect means hampering the ends of justice.

There were reports here today, also, that Curtis would be charged by the federal authorities with hampering the functions of the government, on the strength of his story the Coast Guard patrolled the coast.

DAY'S DEVELOPMENTS

Hopewell, N. J., May 18—(AP)—A fantastic picture of the activities of John Hughes Curtis, bank-rupt Norfolk shipbuilder, in his incredible Lindbergh baby hoax, was painted today as details of his recent movements came to light from many sources.

While New Jersey police guarded Curtis for fear that he would commit suicide, Inspector Harold R. King of the Nassau (New York) county police declared that an hour before the shipbuilder confessed he was confronted in Hopewell by a Long Island bootlegger who charged him with having double-crossed him in a deal involving a large sum of money.

At the same time Chief of Police S. W. Ironmonger of Norfolk, Va., said he did not believe Curtis had made a complete confession and that he was withholding "something important." The police official, however, gave no indication of what he had in mind.

Check Movements
Earlier it had been revealed that Norfolk police were checking on the movements of Curtis the night the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped and had gathered mudscraps from his automobile to determine if it could be identified with New Jersey soil. Mrs. Curtis

Governor's Peace Plan Is Rejected
 Cleveland, May 18.—(AP)—Possible failure of Gov. George White's plan for peace settlement of the wage strike in the eastern Ohio coal mines, loomed today, after representatives of the operators and miners both expressed dissatisfaction with it.

The Governor's plan, a 10-point program of arbitration involving a year's truce and a new wage scale, was made public yesterday. Although the scale suggested by the Governor appeared to be only slightly higher than that proposed by the operators, their spokesmen said it was not acceptable.

The Governor urged a minimum inside dry wage of $3.38 and a minimum wage of 38 cents a ton for loading machine-mined coal.

CHARGE MAY BE
SWORN TO TODAY
AGAINST CURTIS

said her husband was at home. On the heels of this came a statement from Maj. Charles Schoeffel, Assistant Superintendent of New Jersey State Police, that "we had information from a confidential source in Norfolk that this man became involved in financial difficulties and attempted suicide. After receiving that information, for his own protection we placed a guard over him 24 hours a day."

As Jersey police continued their interrogation of the whilom Norfolk negotiator, Dr. John F. Condon, or "Jasie," who paid $50,000 to the supposed kidnappers for the return of his baby, Curtis, the return of his wife, Curtis, to the N. Y. police headquarters in the company of three New York detectives to view rogues' gallery photographs.

In New York, Frank Parzyck, narcotic user, who "confessed" yesterday that he was one of the baby kidnappers, today said his tale was false.

FEW HOAXES SO CRUEL
 Howell, N. J., May 18.—(AP)—An elaborate lie, blown into a bubble of hope that he had the civilized world, exploded today on the penpoint of the man who invented it.

Police called it an "enormous deception" to which John Hughes Curtis, 47-year-old boatbuilder and Lindbergh kidnapping "intermediary," confessed late yesterday. History showed few hoaxes so detailed and none more cruel.

Curtis, under guard of state police today and awaiting decision by prosecuting officers as to what charges, if any, are to be made against him, admitted:

"That his whole story of contacting the kidnappers of Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr. was a figment of his imagination;

"That the deception was practiced not only against the sorrow-burdened parents of the murdered baby and against the entire world, but even against his two fellow townsmen who served with him as 'intermediaries';

"And that his trips in naval planes, his journeys to sea on a private yacht and his mysterious 'contacts' with the kidnappers—killers were concoctions of untruths, brewed in a finance-frenzied mind.

Asks 'Forgiveness'
 In a statement admitting the falseness of his whole story and which he wrote himself and signed, he asked the "forgiveness" of Col. Lindbergh for "the inconvenience, worry and injustice I did him in his time of grief."

"For the last seven or eight months," his statement said, "I have not been myself, due to financial troubles."

Curtis, a Norfolk, Va., boatbuilder, went bankrupt several months ago, later reorganizing his company.

The other members of the Norfolk trio whose negotiations in recent days have held promise of leading to the return of the kidnapped child, the Lindbergh baby, were the Rev. H. Dobson-Peacock, Episcopal clergyman, and Rear Admiral Guy Burgess, retired.

Curtis' statement exonerated both of them. It said, however, that "Dean Dobson-Peacock could have prevented this trouble from me when I went to him first, but instead encouraged me."

Dean To Tell Story
 The clergyman has been requested to come here and tell his story. At Norfolk he said he would reply to the police request today. He said he was mystified at Curtis' reference to him.

Admiral Burgess, who was drawn into the affair because of his acquaintanceship with Col. Lindbergh, had nothing to say.

Curtis' somewhat confused statement indicated his object in the hoax was the acquisition of money by the sale of his story to newspapers and news reel companies. He said he had received large offers from each. His purpose was defeated by the insistence of those offering to buy his story that the child be produced and the "negotiations" completed.

This was impossible, for there were no negotiations save those in Curtis' head—and the baby lay murdered.

There were other developments in a night that marked one of the most hectic, weird and almost unbelievable chapters in the entire history of the case.

In New York, Frank Parzyck, 29, said he was one of the band of six men who kidnapped the baby. The child was not slain deliberately, Parzyck said. He was killed in falling from the ladder while being taken from the second story nursery window of the Sordland home of the Lindberghs March 1.

Commissioner Mulrooney of the New York police personally conducted the questioning of Parzyck described as a user of narcotics—and expressed the opinion that the man's story "rang true." Early today Parzyck was taken to several places on Jamaica Bay where he said he had been with the other "kidnappers"—members of a smuggling crew, he called them—but he could identify none of the places. He said it was "too dark." He was to be taken back there during the day.

Parzyck volunteered his confession after being arrested on a charge of wife abandonment. Condon Not Called

The Bronx grand jury started its inquiry into the payment of $50,000 ransom money by another intermediary—Dr. John F. Condon—to a man who represented himself as acting for the kidnappers. Condon himself was not called before the jury. He is to tell his story Friday.

Condon, whose negotiations for the return of the baby led him despite his 72 years into adventures in strange places—the silent Bronx cemetery where he paid over the ransom money, the Bay where he took a ducking in the cold water while seeking to renew his contact, and to journeys in the dead of night, following the lure of messages given him by a mysterious, veiled woman—said the Curtis hoax had been disastrous to his own efforts.

He said that publication of a statement attributed to Curtis that Col. Lindbergh was willing to pay, through him, $100,000 ransom, had caused the kidnappers to drop their Bronx negotiations and seek greater gold through Curtis.

"All the story hasn't been told yet," said the retired school master. He indicated that he still was hopeful of leading the law to the gang that got the $50,000 ransom money—supplied by Col. Lindbergh—from him.

SEARCH IN MEXICO
 Mexico City, May 18.—(AP)—A search by police officers throughout Mexico for Harry Fleisher, reputed member of the Detroit "purple" gang, had failed to locate him today Chief of Police Manuel Oviedo Rubio of the federal district said.

There was no definite knowledge that Fleisher was in Mexico, the Chief said, adding that if he were he could not escape the dragnet which was out to apprehend him. Spanish circulars based on Detroit police notices were prepared for distribution throughout the country.

A report last night that Fleisher was arrested in Monterrey was quickly denied by the Chief of Police there.

The newspaper El Porvenir at Monterrey said the report arose out of a joke. Immigration officials arrested two foreigners who were held until they could produce entry papers, El Porvenir said, and a policeman jokingly told a reporter it was Fleisher who was being held.

Monterrey police know nothing of Fleisher's whereabouts.

NEWS CHURCHES
 DISTRICT CHURCH LUNCHEON
 The Illinois Disciples Foundation of the University of Illinois held a noon-day luncheon at the Christian Church today. Sixteen churches of Northern Illinois were represented. Rev. Stephen E. Fisher, president of the Foundation, was in charge of the team that visited Dixon in interest of the students from Christian church homes who attend the university.

A new building in connection with the projected new University Place Christian church is being planned for. It will be remembered that the church burned a few weeks ago, destroying all the records and equipment of the Foundation.

The Jurist Says Revolts Against Law Have No Place In U. S.

Chicago, May 18.—(AP)—Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson today called upon the press to help end an era of "disrespect for law," asserting the courts and public officials were powerless without the backing of a "strong, awakened public sentiment."

Judge Wilkerson, who sentenced "Scarface Al" Capone and other gangsters to prison and who has been nominated for elevation to the Federal Circuit bench, spoke to a meeting of the Inland Daily Press Association.

"We hear a great deal," he said, "about the right of insurrection against unjust laws, about nullification of laws which never should have been passed. That doctrine has no right in this republic."

We have adopted our laws and made our laws and until we change them we should abide by them. Any other course means the breaking down of all law. It imperils the republic itself."

At Critical Period.
 Judge Wilkerson said the country was in one of its most critical periods with "the continuance of free government" involved. The present condition, he added, was a product of a number of forces, including a long period of "open defiance of law" by great industrial corporations, the Great War "with its disruption of social and governmental restraints," the automobile which made apprehension of criminals more difficult.

"The laws against liquor and narcotics," Judge Wilkerson continued, "have opened great fields in which enormous profits are to be reaped through violation of law."

It is customary, he said, to look to the courts and public officers for enforcement of law, but Judge Wilkerson asserted "alone they are powerless."

People Must Awake.
 "This condition of disrespect for law will not disappear until back of the courts and the officers is a strong, awakened, public sentiment. When the people realize that their very institutions of government are at stake and demand that laws be obeyed and offenders punished, the rest is comparatively easy."

"In this work a heavy responsibility falls upon the press. By its daily word it is a leader of public opinion. There are many ways in which it can aid the agencies of law enforcement. There is one which is greater than all the rest combined. The press should take an unwavering position for the enforcement of laws so long as they remain on the statute books."

"If we have enacted unwise laws, let us set about the work of correction in an orderly way. But let us recognize that obedience to law is the basic condition without which law will not disappear until back of the courts and the officers is a strong, awakened, public sentiment. When the people realize that their very institutions of government are at stake and demand that laws be obeyed and offenders punished, the rest is comparatively easy."

Attend Inspection Sterling Auxiliary

A number of Dixon members of Baldwin Auxiliary, U. S. W. V. were invited to attend the meeting of the Elks E. Smith Auxiliary U. S. W. V. in Sterling last evening. Mrs. Lottie Horton, District Inspector, made an inspection of the Sterling organization.

The meeting in the Sterling Auxiliary's headquarters was well attended, and a fine inspection held, with good floor work and excellent cooperation. Later a social meeting was enjoyed and tempting refreshments were served.

Mrs. Horton reported the Sterling auxiliary in good condition. The guests from Dixon in attendance at the meeting included Mrs. Horton, Dist. Inspector; Mrs. Dora Heft, Mrs. Hattie Rossiter, Mrs. Emma Miller, Mrs. Lillian Miller, Mrs. Helma Helmick, Miss Dorothy Helmick, Mrs. Goodwin, Mrs. Hanson, Mrs. Humphrey, Mrs. Hemmen, Mrs. Matthew Docter.

First Club Meeting; Officers Elected

The Live Wire 4-H club held its first meeting at the home of the leader, Miss Dorothy Gonneman, on Monday, May 16.

The meeting was called to order and began with the election of officers which resulted in the following:

President—Evelyn Shippert
Vice president—Eleanor Stahl
Sec.-Treas.—Dorothy Meyer
Cheer leader—Elma Lort
Club reporter—Ethel Stahl

The newly elected president then took charge and appointed the program committee for this season—Eleanor Stahl, chairman, and Dorothy Meyer.

The net item of business was the signing for the year's work. Some girls signed for first, second and fourth year work. As there was no more business the meeting was then adjourned.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Dorothy Gonneman on Saturday, May 28. Any new members will be welcome.

Deft Mender Books And Papers Dead

Mattoon, Ill., May 18—(AP)—

Deft use of the simplest tools brought wide fame to the late Mrs.

Elizabeth Purtil of Mattoon, who earned the title of Doctor to Books

because of her skillful rehabilitation of valuable old manuscripts and books in many parts of the country. She died at her home here last week.

It was Mrs. Purtil who put the valuable LaSalle manuscripts, rich in the early history of Indiana, in order. When the Indiana state librarian secured the priceless manuscripts from the heirs of the French explorer, LaSalle, he sent for the Mattoon woman. He had heard that damage done to old papers by the ravages of time and careless handling had no terrors for Purtil. A few hours work on an ancient sheet of paper which had been torn in two or was crumbling at the edges would make it good as new. The LaSalle collection was only one of many interesting commissions entrusted to Mrs. Purtil.

Her outfit was simple, her daughter, Mrs. Florence Purtil Snyder of Muskogee, Okla., related here today. Just a case knife, a spoon, a brush and a jar of paste with bits of linen, needles, thread, cheesecloth, cambric, chiffon and crepe.

She liked crepe better than chiffon for overlying torn maps or a page from a Bible, because it was more brittle like tissue paper and more easily handled. She often haunted the country stores to procure certain faded and old fashioned shades of saffron for bindings.

Mrs. Purtil studied the anatomy of books when she became a librarian at Charleston, Illinois, following the death of her husband in 1899, her daughter said. It was while on a vacation to visit her son in Pittsburgh that she became a professional mender of books. Mrs. Purtil sought substitute work in one of the Carnegie libraries there in the belief that the experience would be interesting and educational. She found all vacancies filled but was asked if she knew anything about mending books. She was put to work. She went to Pittsburgh to stay two weeks and remained for two years, dividing her time between the three Carnegie libraries and conducting large classes in hospital work for books. It became a profession in itself, for, as Mrs. Purtil soon discovered, librarians in large libraries in large libraries had little time to look after repairs, and they usually made the error of using too much glue.

When in Pittsburgh, Mrs. Purtil read in the papers of a "racket" being worked by suburbanites with their commuters tickets, which proved quite profitable to her. When the conductors punched a ticket, certain commuters would recover the punched pieces and replace them in tickets so cleverly that detection was almost impossible. When the scandal was finally exposed, it was revealed that the clever persons had repaired the tickets with collodian or new skin. Mrs. Purtil put the piece of information to good use and found that certain tears could be mended with collodian so that they have defied detection.

She always said that different kinds of paper took different kinds of treatment. One doesn't use one method to the exclusion of another, anymore than a doctor prescribes quinine in every case, she has often remarked.

Mrs. Purtil became a professional mender of books in 1906 and until four years ago had an office and workshop in the University of Chicago, Mrs. Snyder said. She was employed for five years by the Universities of Illinois, Chicago, and Northwestern in restoring books in their various libraries. She also taught special classes in book mending in all of these universities.

Says Enforcement Is More Effective

Chicago, May 18—(AP)—Prohibition enforcement in the United States cost four cents per capita and the enforcement personnel consists of one agent to every 55,000 citizens, says Federal Prohibition Director Amos W. Woodcock.

He addressed the Illinois Federation of Women Clubs yesterday, quoted the statistics, and said enforcement was growing in effectiveness. How best to direct the efforts of the force of agents, he declared, was now the most important question of policy.

Dr. Preston Bradley of the People's Church of Chicago, who also spoke, termed the people's attitude toward the life of today "a mess" and said experiments in education that struck "at every ideal" have almost destroyed the constructive effort of 2,000 years (Christianity).

Mrs. George P. Brown, charter member of the Bloomington Women's Club and 97, won the eldest mother contest.

Honor badges were presented Mrs. Arthur Bayne of LaSalle, Mrs. E. E. Motter of Oak Park and Mrs. Fred E. Lufkin of Elgin, for their work as district publicity chairmen.

The convention, the federation's 37th annual, opened yesterday.

The federation today recognized in a resolution that there are "well organized and malicious forces" seeking to destroy the home, religion and American government, and by vote pledged their support to the national government to down this propaganda.

The convention, which represents 70,000 Illinois clubwomen, further pledged their confidence in the President and others in authority to bring back to the American people confidence that has been undermined by "present economic conditions that have had a disastrous effect upon morale."

It was authorized that a copy of the resolution be sent to the President.

The resolution was offered by Mrs. William Bruckner of Hinsdale, chairman of press and publicity, and was approved by the state Federation Board of Directors.

When presented to the convention this morning there were a few dissenting voices.

Is Non-Partisan

In explanation of her resolution Mrs. Bruckner stressed that the federation is non-partisan politically and that her resolution was not to be taken as an endorsement of any particular candidate, but to pledge to the successful President and officers of authority the support of women to down what she termed "vicious propaganda."

"Further," she said, "we elect a man to office, and then after election proceed to attack him."

The resolution as voted, follows: "The present economic condition has had a disastrous effect upon morale and whereas there are well organized and malicious forces in the country dominated by influences which are seeking to destroy the home, religion and the government, and whereas the President and others in authority are being attacked, humiliated and hampered by vicious propaganda be it resolved:

"That this body of women go on record as pledging its loyalty to the President of the United States and his associates, while in office, and give the President our confidence and support in his efforts to restore public confidence."

One of the Federation's major projects is conservation of scenic beauty, and two resolutions were passed in this connection. One was that bitter sweet, a wild climbing vine found in this state and in danger of extinction through destruction, be placed on the list of wild flowers protected by state law.

The Federation also voted endorsement of the Central States Forestry Congress in its program that all idle lands be reforested. Mrs. William P. Farrell of Chicago was nominated for President to succeed Mrs. Mary A. Wall of Murphysboro. She was unopposed, as was the nomination of Mrs. A. O. James of Salem for Vice President of the southern state district.

But three candidates were advanced for the office of Vice President of the central district. They are: Mrs. Ralph W. Pringle of Normal, Mrs. M. P. Kelly of Watseka and Mrs. H. B. LaCharite of Assumption. Election will be held tomorrow.

Meeting Nachusa Missionary Society

The Nachusa Missionary society met at the church basement with twenty-three members present on Thursday.

A very instructive lesson on Korea was given by Mrs. Emma Dyrast followed by the quiz.

After the close of the business meeting tempting refreshments were served at the table very prettily decorated in spring flowers with the following ladies acting as hostesses: Miss Mary Sutton, Mrs. Clara Girndt and Mrs. Geo. Weidman.

Mothers Guests of Missionary Circle

On Monday evening the Young Peoples Missionary Circle of the Christian church met at the church for their regular meeting. The mothers of the girls were invited as guests. This has been the custom at the May meeting, since the Circle was organized three years ago.

The president, Nadine Padgett, opened the business meeting by having the girls sing a welcome song to the mothers, after which she gave the invocation, "Our Motive" and "Our Pledge" was given by all, followed by a song, a parody to the well known, "Tramp, Tramp, Tramp." Four new girls were welcomed into the Circle at this time by the president and girls. They are Helen Mae Fish, Mildred Fish, Edna Moshelder and Evelyn Groff.

The secretary's report was given and approved. The report of the nominating committee was as follows:

President—Lucille Rhodes.
Vice President—Nadine Padgett.
Secretary—Ruth Smith.
Treasurer—Olive Boos.
Librarian—Helen McGonigle.

Offertory prayer was given by Nadine Padgett.

Lucille Rhodes had charge of the worship period:

Song, "Others."
Call to Worship.
Song, "Way Down Upon the Congo River."

Scripture Reading—Jeremiah 1:6-8.

Quotation with Illustration—Lucille Rhodes.

The presentation period was led by Hazel Rhodes and gave the following program:

Talk, "As I See India"—Verda Padgett.
Talk, "As I See Africa"—Gladys Kline.

Circle Prayers.

Talk, "Challenges to Us from India"—Hazel Holmworth.

Talk, "Challenges to Us From Africa"—Helen Mae Fish.

Talk, "Watch Us Grow from India's Viewpoint"—Ruth Smith.

Talk, "Watch Us Grow from Africa's Viewpoint"—Ethel Seyster.

During the fellowship period dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses. The pink and white circle color combination was prettily carried out. The tables were exceptionally attractive in their pink and white trimmings and garden flowers. At this time songs, poems and a short story were enjoyed. The comment of several of the mothers on the growth of the Circle in a year's time were especially applauded.

The Circle benediction was then given, bringing to a close another enjoyable and successful meeting.

Mrs. Rowland Hostess to Candlelighters

The Candlelighters Aid Society of the Presbyterian church held a very pleasant meeting on Friday at the home of Mrs. A. A. Rowland with a large number of members present.

After the usual business was finished the guests adjourned to the dining room where they were served with very nice refreshments.

The table was beautifully decorated with lilacs and yellow tulips.

Mrs. E. L. Staples poured. The committee was Mrs. Karl Forsberg, Mrs. Jesse Gardner, Mrs. Henry Higley and Mrs. Will Lee.

The next meeting will be held the second Friday in June at the home of Mrs. C. C. Buckaloo.

Spanish Coloratura Delights Hearers

Senorita Coniella Anzaldúa, Spanish coloratura soprano, won her way to the hearts of every music lover who was privileged to hear her in recital at the Christian church Tuesday afternoon. Miss Anzaldúa was the guest of the Dixon Kiwanis club and was accompanied to Dixon by Editor and Mrs. Frank Nangle of Paw Paw. Mrs. Nangle accompanied her at the piano during the too brief recital.

Senorita Coniella, as the singer is known, is an orphan. She is the possessor of a rare soprano voice, which has been carefully trained and coupled with her petite manner and charming personality, she immediately endears herself to her listeners. Her program consisted of the following selections:

"By the Waters of Minnetonka," An old English air.

"Song of the Soul."

Encore—"If no One Ever Marries Me."

"Oh so Fair" air from "Martha."

"Roses of Piccadilly."

Mexican love song—"My Own Love," in Spanish.

Encore—"The Cuckoo," and a song in Spanish.

WHO LOVES NATURE?

People who live in the country, according to a speaker at the recent New Orleans meeting of the American Nature Study Society, are not very often in love with nature. Farmers oppose the introduction of nature study courses in schools, farm children have very little interest in the matter and farm folk generally look on nature as an enemy rather than as a friendly and beautiful ally.

All of this is probably a bit surprising, although it needn't be. There is little doubt that some of the most impassioned writing about the beauties of nature comes from people who live in city apartments and wouldn't know a wheatfield from a cabbage patch. The man who makes his living by agriculture is not given to much talk over the delights of living close to the soil.

And that is perfectly natural. A clear, frosty spring morning can be heaven itself to the nature-lover; but to the farmer it can mean a ruined fruit crop and the loss of half his year's income. The vagaries of the weather may delight the city man who is on vacation, but they can move the farmer to prayerful oburgations.

Nevertheless, the countryman's reluctance to gush about nature's charms is hardly a true sign that he doesn't recognize them and delight in them. He knows that nature can be malignant as well as lovely, and he doesn't like to talk about "rural delights," just as the sailor gets a pain when he hears people speak of the "romance of the sea"; but the countryman is a nature-lover at bottom, or he wouldn't be living in the country.

For his rewards are things that do not often get put in words. They are things he soaks up unconsciously, hardly thinking about them; the clean freshness of a hilly pasture in a misty dawn, the pungent warmth of a filled barn on a winter's morning, the richness of green young wheat on a long slope at sunset, the cool dusk of the shadowy lanes down which he sends his cattle to their grazing-fields—these things mean more to him than he can ever tell.

And because he can't tell about them, but can only curse unseasonable weather, he will always be the despair of nature-lovers from the city.

OVERALLS IN CHURCH.

When a little Methodist church at Trion, Georgia, voted to adopt an official garb of overalls and printed cotton dresses for its Sunday services hereafter, it took a very gracious and an exceedingly literal interpretation of the Golden Rule.

There are many poor people in the church. Probably most of them would like to attend the services in fine clothes. It's a perfectly human desire, and there are congregations, here and there, in which one suspects that that longing to exhibit fine raiment is what really got some of the members into their pews.

But a lot of the people in this Georgia church had to wear overalls or cotton dresses—because they possessed no other clothes.

And the congregation, in voting to make those garments the regular thing for Sunday morning wear, must have had in mind that passage of the Bible in which going into the presence of God in shining raiment is mentioned; for that passage, of course, refers to things of the spirit, not of the flesh, and overalls and cotton dresses can qualify very easily.

The step makes one feel that these people in this small-town church must be both friendly and level-headed. They are going to have, in their not overly prosperous church, a sense of fellowship and good understanding that many a cathedral, with stained-glass windows, rhythmic cadences of organ and choral music and many candles has sought and never found.

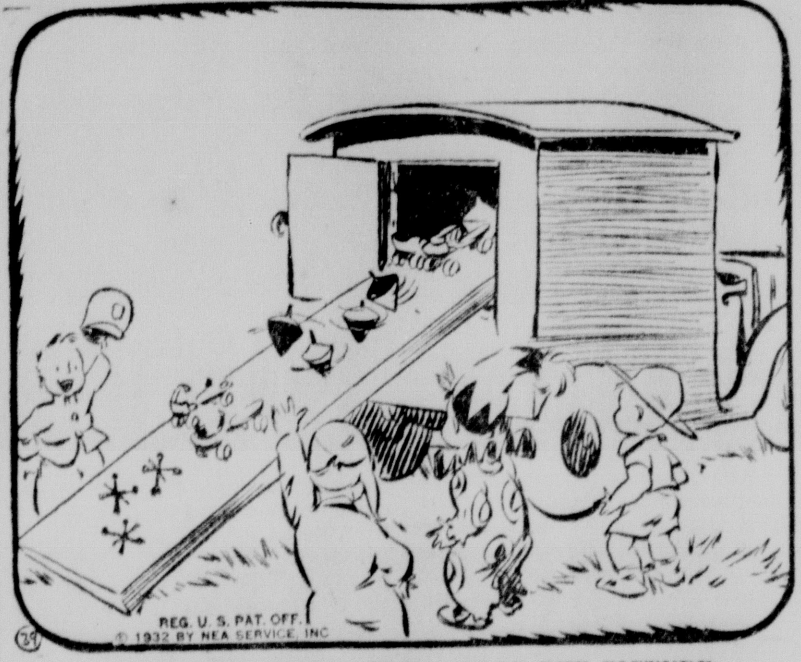

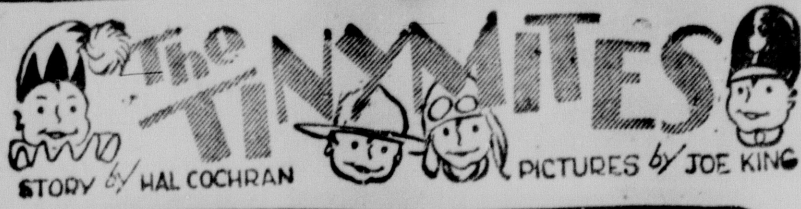

The story of the widow and her mite has always been one of the best-loved stories in the New Testament. Something of that spirit seems to have prompted this action about the overalls and print dresses. And it may be that the little southern church, where the men wear blue denim and the women wear their third-best gowns, just because they don't want the poorer members to feel badly, will live longer in the memory than some churches that are wonders of masonry and architecture.

For the world, calloused though it sometimes seems, has a habit of appreciating sincerity and humility.

The cost of government must and can be reduced. It is a grim necessity. The annual earnings of the people have been reduced 50 per cent during this period, yet taxes are at the highest peak in history. The economic structure cannot stand the strain for long.—Governor Dan W. Turner of Iowa.

There is general realization that something must be done before Congress adjourns; that the need next winter will be urgent.—Senator Joe Robinson of Arkansas.

The holding corporation and all the mixup of inter-company relationships, if allowed to exist at all, ought to be brought into broad daylight.—William Z. Ripley, Harvard economist.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

When all the play man's rugs were done, wee Scouty said "Say! That was fun. I got my share of exercise and it made me feel great.

"Some muscles that went stale on me are now as active as can be. 'Tis well we rushed the job along because it is getting late."

The play man snapped, "Now don't you fret. A real nice nap you're going to get. All of you run into my house, where you will find a bed.

"Come on, now, smile! Don't be forlorn, I'll let you snooze till early morn. Wee Scouty can sleep longer 'cause he is a big sleepy head."

So, while the dark night came and went, a very pleasant time was spent by all the tired old Tynmites. Then the sun rose. So did they.

The play man served them porridge hot and every Tyny ate a lot. Then Scouty said, "What are we going to do this pretty day?"

The play man thought with all his might and then he said, "You will all see a sight that I am sure will please you. Come, you little lads, follow me."

He led them through his big front door and then the Tynies heard him roar, "Oh, here's my truck! Help load it. Then a funny sight you will see."

"Where is the big truck?" wee Scouty said. Then up to them the strange truck sped. "I am going to load my toys in tight," exclaimed the old play man.

"Pull down that long plank. Make it fast and then my toys will file right past." The Tynies now, were very thrilled. Up to the truck they ran.

Then, out came tops and skates and such. The play man said, "Now, please don't touch. Just let them hike into the truck while we all stand around. You see, you've tried out all those toys. They're ready now for girls and boys. When my big truck is loaded off to cities it is bound."

(Old man play tells the Tynies a story next.)

"UNCLE ANDY," WORLDS' RICHEST ENVOY, HAS LONDON PUZZLED

Britain Waits For Mellon To Perform

By MILTON BRONNER—London. (NEA Service)—Is Andrew Mellon, American Ambassador to the Court of St. James a pale ghost, a frightened deer, a shrinking violet, or a mighty multi-millionaire personality whose impress will be felt in the relations between America and Great Britain?

London hasn't made up its mind as yet. London is waiting to see. London is waiting to be shown. Uncle Andy has been ambassador for about two months now and is still almost as much of an unknown quantity as before he came.

It was not the fault of the English papers if their public did not know a great deal about the superficial facts of his life. Echoing the Republican campaign books, they said he was the greatest secretary of the treasury since Alexander Hamilton. They dealt at length upon his vast wealth.

It was funny reading for Americans living and working in London.

Richest Man in England

The British, together with most Europeans, have always insisted that Americans are dollar chasers, confirmed worshippers of the golden calf. And day by day, the main thing the English papers had to tell their readers about the ambassador, who was coming, was that he was one of the three richest men in America. When they got tired of that, they varied the tune by complacently saying that when he settled down in the embassy in London, he would be the richest man in Great Britain.

They told about his quiet manner, his low-pitched voice, his clothes of the finest material, but out, oh, so discreetly—in fact he was quite a nice little English gentleman, not one of those typical hustling, bustling, talkative Americans. One gossip writer told how Uncle Andy thinks nothing of spending a quarter of a million bucks for a painting he particularly wants.

Society's Hopes Run High

Another made the mouths of British aristocracy water by calling up visions of fat dinners with dainty dishes and priceless wines, as thus:

Mr. Mellon, being enormously rich will now be expected to make his embassy a social rendezvous. Already I hear of cards being presented at his door by people who have not called there for years. There have been no rich United States ambassadors, in the strict sense, since the late Mr. Whitelaw Reid, occupied what was then Dorchester House in Park Lane. It was the finest private residence in London. Mr. Reid would spend his year's salary on a couple of banquets and balls.

Finally Mellon landed on the English shores. The English reporters vied with each other in describing him. They could find only poetic adjectives for him—"shy," "shrinking," "timid," and "frightened."

He made a speech at a banquet in his honor by the Pilgrims. One paper said "he is a man of infinite charm and he has a deep fund of wisdom and good sense, and every word which he says is worth hearing."

Another said editorially: "His words are weighted with the sincerity and adorned with the simplicity of the statesman becomes philosopher, who strives to pass on the garnered wisdom of the older generation to the generation actually in command."

A Few Disenters

But there were a few dissenting voices. There was the hard-boiled reporter whose job it has been for years to attend the press conferences the American ambassadors occasionally give. He had sized up the late George Harvey as a man who, between drinks, emitted amusing wisecracks; A. B. Houghton, as a person, who looked like a frightened rabbit taken from the pages of "Alice in Wonderland." Frank B. Kellogg as living up to his Washington nickname of "Nervous Nelly"; General Dawes as an odd cuss with his underslung pipe clenched between his teeth and pounding the table when he got earnest.

Well, here is how he described the first conference Mellon had with the press:

"It was like trying to catch the whisperings of a ghost and when you caught what he had said, he had said nothing particular."

Call Speech "Platitudes"

The pendant to this is what another gossip writer said of his speech to the Pilgrims: "In an almost inaudible voice he carefully read platitudes to the assembled company." The cold fact is that, perhaps, Uncle Andy has disappointed the British up to date. He has not proposed that America cancel the debts Europe owes it. He hasn't bought an expensive painting from any impecunious nobleman. And above all, up to date, he has not thrown any big dinner to the nobles and the nabobs. He has been just as shy and retreating and elusive as he was in Washington.

DAILY HEALTH

The Fate Of The Diabetic

A sufficient number of years, more than ten, have passed since the discovery of insulin to enable us to judge the effects on the everyday life of the sufferer from diabetes.

In studying the histories of several thousands of diabetic patients, it has been found that not only is insulin effective in controlling the disease by enabling the body to utilize sugar as an energy source, but also that it has made possible a close approximation to normal existence in terms of physical and mental vigor and in working capacity.

Of course insulin is not a cure for diabetes. It is, as it has been aptly and the patients have learned to use their "crutches" so effectively like normal two legged persons. The diabetic patient, of course, still is compelled to take insulin by injection.

Insulin by mouth has practically no effect, and so-called insulin substitutes or other agents which are supposed to enable the diabetic body to utilize carbohydrates, are still to uncertain in their effects to be experienced with by the patient whose well-being depends upon getting an essential amount of insulin.

Diabetic children who heretofore were almost invariably doomed to an early death, now may live to grow up normally and to prepare themselves to take an active part in industrial and communal life.

When properly treated, the diabetic patient can undergo the taxing experiences of life, such such as childbirth, illness and surgical operation.

Nevertheless, the patient is required to pay more than ordinary attention to his illnesses, even to minor ones such as a cold.

The fate of the diabetic patient depends on the skill and judgment of his doctor, but even more than that, on his own intelligence and on his willingness to pay attention to the details of his treatment. Tomorrow—Arteriosclerosis

AMBOY NEWS

By Francis Lepperd.

Amboy—A large crowd was in attendance at the senior class play, "Shirt Sleeve" Friday evening. The play was extremely well given and much credit is due the members of the cast as well as the director Mrs. Beatrice Myard. The new stage curtain which the class of '32 is presenting as a gift to the school was used for the first time. Lois Smith spent the week end with her friend Ethel Topper.

Herbert Barton of Sublette who attends school at Normal visited with friends here Saturday night.

On Thursday evening at the Court of Honor of Boy Scout troop, No. 87, the following boys received promotions: Wilton Rice and Edward Mickey and Arthur Walker, tenderfoot and Vernon Trickett, star scout. John J. Haas, chairman of the court of honor presented the awards. At this time Edward Vaile of Dixon presented the Lee county vice president's cup to troop 87. The music of the evening was furnished by the Boy Scout band. The handsome vice president's cup is now on display at the Neis pharmacy.

Wanda Rossiter of Dixon, Harriet Hardy and Treveare Hoyle were week end guests of Betty Lepperd.

Mrs. Holly Smith and daughter Jean were shopping in LaSalle Saturday.

Harry Longman is moving his garage from the Spangler building to the Harvey building. Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Pritch, Maude Thurston and Walter Lepperd enjoyed a motor trip to Somonauk Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lepperd and daughter Betty visited at the R. S. Shatto home in Dixon Sunday afternoon.

Arthur Tourillott of Sublette was a business caller here Monday morning.

Melvin Conway has moved to Normal where she will finish her high school course. She is a very brilliant student in domestic science.

 Highlands vs. City Dudes—North athletic field.
 Indians vs. Red Men—Independent field.

The Railroaders upset the dope last evening in defeating the James pool room team by a 7 to 6 score before a large crowd at the north athletic field. Dempewolf batted out a home run in the final inning for the James crew but could not score sufficient runs ahead of him to overcome the opposition's lead.

Indiana Miler Is Out For New Mark

Chicago, May 18—(AP)—One of the oldest records on the Western Conference books—Eddie Fall's 4:15.8 for the mile—is expected to go in the annual championship meet Saturday.

Fall, running for Oberlin College, outdistanced the best milers in the midwest to set his record in 1917, and a number of times since it has been in danger, only to hold up.

This year Henry Brocksmith of Indiana, the greatest miler and two-miler in Big Ten history, figures to smash the mark. If he runs as he did in setting a new indoor record of 4:12.5, the prospective lack of competition will make no difference. Brocksmith won indoors by about 60 yards, and came back to set a new two-mile record of 9:18.6. At the Drake Relays he did still better at the longer distance, winning in 9:13.1.

Other records appear to be safe enough.

OLDFIELD HOPES TO MAKE 300 MI. PER HOUR IN CAR

Veteran American Racer In Earnest About His Speed Plans

Detroit, May 18—(AP)—When Barney Oldfield roars along the hard packed sand of Daytona Beach, Florida, next February on the trail of a new world automobile speed record, he will do it as his plans mature, he wants no sensational talk about a veteran race driver's "comeback attempt."

"It will be a straight business proposition with me," he explains, "made more interesting, perhaps, because of its patriotic aspect. I hope to bring the world record back to America and an American-made car."

Oldfield is here to conduct wind-tunnel tests on a model of the 24-cylinder, four-wheel drive car in which he hopes to exceed the 253.988 miles per hour record set last February 24 by Malcolm Campbell of England, also at Daytona Beach. Three hundred miles an hour is his goal.

Details of the car are on paper in the Los Angeles plant of Harry Miller, racing car builder. Oldfield expects it to develop 3,000 horse power. The wind tunnel tests are expected to determine efficiency of the proposed design which, he said, might be described roughly as cigar-shaped.

The car will be powered by three banks of eight cylinders, each operating on a single crankshaft. It will be geared for 360 miles an hour at maximum speed. Construction, Oldfield said, is expected to start in June and he hopes to give the $50,000 speed machine preliminary trials on Murdock dry lake, California, in November. Oldfield now is 54. He will be 55 when he makes his new bid for speed and fame.

He admits that, but adds that "Campbell is past 48."

The Olympic Games at Los Angeles are still weeks away, but the first protest has been fired. Charles Denis, secretary of the French Olympic committee, thinks it "most unsporting" of the United States Olympic authorities to deny French athletes their daily life of wine.

REFLECTION—

It may be only a coincidence and certainly is not offered as an argument against prohibition, but the only track victory scored by the United States in the 1928 Olympic Games at Amsterdam was that of Ray Barbati, and Ray included wine in his daily diet.

HEAVY HOGAN—

Whatever James Francis Hogan, catcher of the Giants, eats or drinks seems to turn quickly into pounds. Francis has been having trouble keeping his weight below 250 pounds, in spite of the fact that Mr. McGraw keeps him under close surveillance by scanning the dining room checks.

AND HACK WILSON—

Mr. Wilson of the Brooklyn Boys also has been having some little annoyance with his waist line, not to mention his batting average. Hack likes potatoes and well buttered bread. It begins to appear that the young man will have trouble hitting the size of his belt.

"PEANUTS" CARNERA—

While on large topics, it is hard to forget that the ponderous shadow of Primo Carnera will appear on the boxing horizon again this year. How about a match for the obesity championship between Hogan, Wilson and Carnera? By the way, did you know that Primo has a great way with a peanut or a banana?

DIXON DEFEATED STERLING TEAM IN FINAL DUAL

Victory In Relay Tuesday Evening Decided Trac Meet

By DON HILLIKER

A "natural" was the deciding factor in Tuesday's dual meet with Sterling which was taken by Dixon 63½ to 58½. Pilling up points in the 880, broad jump and javelin pushed Dixon into a 58½ deadlock with Sterling.

The last meet of the season, Sterling seeking to avenge their conference loss, the score tied and the relay to be run put the teams in a tough spot. Condon and Weaver led off with Weaver gaining about four yards. Hendricks lost a yard to Talty but Strong streaked by Praetz and handed Ogan a good advantage. Terhune was closing in around the curve and pulled up fast down the stretch. As they crossed the line Ogan had a hair's breadth lead to give Dixon undefeated dual record in five contests. The time of 1:36.5 was a full second faster than Dixon's best record and only a second slower than Rockford's, winner at the Preempt district. Incidentally, Sterling's relayists placed second in the Moline district Saturday and therefore will compete at Champaign this week end.

Last night, Strong surpassed all previous performances when he leaped 21 feet 1½ inches in the broad jump. Ogan has 20-1 for second position.

Another outstanding feat of Strong's was his 220 race when he was only inches back of Weaver, whose time was 23.½. Weaver also won the 100 in :10.5 and the quarter in :34.8.

Strong had two firsts and two seconds for sixteen points and the high total. Weaver was second on fifteen. Ogan had twelve and Praetz eleven.

Padgett ran his fastest race to win the mile in 4:53.8. Compton and Smith trotted in to the half mile victory. The high hurdles went to Schildberg in 18.1. Terhune was ahead of Fordham for first in the low hurdles. 43 feet 7 inches was Praetz's heave in the shot and his mark of 110 feet 4 inches won the discus. Strong only cleared 5-3 for the high jump honors. Ogan, district javelin record holder, won his event on a toss of 144 feet 3 inches. Gordon and Rutt of Sterling took the pole vault at 10 feet 2 inches.

Sterling swept into an early lead taking seven firsts, five seconds and six thirds out of eleven events. Strong and Ogan came through with first and second in the broad jump and vice versa in the javelin. Coach Bowers leaves Thursday after school dismissal with his two entrants in the annual state classic at Champaign this Saturday. Ogan will toss the javelin while Strong is competing in the high jump and broad jump.

Thursday and Friday of this week the grade school track and field meet will be held on the high school grounds beginning at 4:00 P. M. each day. The North Central school is the defending champion.

Battalino And Petrolle Ready

Chicago, May 18—(AP)—Bat Battalino, former world featherweight champion, today had reached the golfing stage of preparation for his ten round bout with Billy Petrolle in the Chicago Stadium Friday night.

Battalino had finished the vigorous part of his training and golf was to be his workout today and tomorrow. Petrolle, who does not play golf and figured on taking off another pound, was scheduled to box today and rest tomorrow. The bout will be at 140 pounds.

YANKEES' HOPES OF NEW RECORD GONE; FIGHT ON

McCarthy men Have Looked Like Champions During May

BY GAYLE TALBOT

(Associated Press Sports Writer)
 Their hopes for a new all-time record for holding the opposition scoreless gone, the Yankees today bent their energies to winning the American pennant.

And if ever a ball club looked like a champion in May, it is Joe McCarthy's high-powered outfit. Their pitching over a stretch of eight straight victories, has been well high perfect, their hitting timely and their fielding almost inspired.

Their closest rivals, the Washington Senators, have hit hard sliding against the western clubs and dropped three straight to St. Louis. Yesterday's 3 to 2 triumph over Cleveland while the Senators were losing to the Browns, 11 to 2, put the McCarthy men a half game in front of the field.

As for that record the Yankees sought, when Johnny Allen, who started the run of four scoreless performances, faced the Indians yesterday he needed to pitch only one scoreless inning to tie the 29-year-old mark of 41 in a row. He got by the first two batters but Earl Averill, belted a homer into the right field bleachers.

Won On Four Hits
 Mel Harder, Indian right-hander, granted the Yankees only four hits, but Ben Chapman's home run in the fourth with Gehrig on base tripped him up. Some great fielding by Tony Lazzeri pulled Allen out of bad spots in the late innings.

The Philadelphia Athletics bunched three singles with a wild throw in the seventh inning to beat the Detroit Tigers, 2 to 0. George Earnshaw allowed only four hits. The Chicago White Sox made it three straight over Boston, 7 to 3, when Danny MacFayden was accented ragged support.

Bill Walker, New York Giant southpaw, lost his own game to Cincinnati by 2 to 1 when he cut loose a wild throw past first on Manion's bunt in the tenth and Grantham scored from third base. Bill Terry's eighth home run of the season gave the Giants their only run off Ray Kelp.

Cub's Big Inning
 Pittsburgh made it two out of three in Brooklyn, 3 to 1, as Bill Harris pitched scoreless ball for the first seven innings. The Pirates bunched their blows off Bala Phelps in the third and fourth frames.

Philadelphia's Phillies blew sky high in the seventh inning and Chicago scored eight runs to win, 9 to 4. Six hits, three walks and three Phillies errors contributed to the Cub's large margin.

Pepper Martin returned to the Cardinals line-up after being out several weeks with a dislocated shoulder and drove in two runs with a double as Bill Hallahan bested Lefty Brandt in a hurling duel, 4 to 3. Hallahan struck out and contributed a triple of the Cards' attack. Red Worthington drove in all the losers' runs with a home run and a single.

Sidelights In News In Capital Of United States

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

WASHINGTON—That diminutive, 6'6-inch waspish senator from Virginia—Carter Glass—may not get the call to head the platform committee at the democratic national convention in June, but it hardly can be doubted that a lot of the Glass philosophy and ideas will be easily discernible in the planks used in its making.

For there are perhaps few these days who will challenge the notion that the Virginia senator stands in a class by himself as an authority in public life on banking legislation. His part in trying to cure the economic ills of the country has been big. At the age of 74 he is engaged on one of the most tremendous tasks he has ever undertaken—erecting by legislation what he terms the weakness of the federal reserve act which he himself wrote back in 1913.

In a republican-controlled senate Glass has taken the lead in emergency financial legislation.

Chance Casts His Role
 The story of Senator Glass' rise to fame as a financial legislator is remarkable. His start can be attributed more or less to chance.

When he came to congress back in 1902 as a member of the house he knew little about banking and currency. Actually his interest lay in the field of history. He thought, when the time came to assign him to committees, that he would like a seat on foreign affairs.

John Sharp Williams of Mississippi was the democratic leader of the house at the time. He paid little attention to Glass' preference and stuck him in a seat on the public lands committee.

However, a few weeks later a western man came to the house and wanted an assignment on public lands. Williams and the speaker decided to shift Glass to make room for him.

AIR PATHS of GLORY

AMELIA EARHART AND WILMER STULTZ

By DEXTER H. TEED
NEA Service Writer

"A magnificent feat," the aviation experts said.
It was middle June, 1928. Like a great bird the plane "Friendship," had dropped out of a summer haze and had come to rest in a field near Barry Port, Wales, England. The tall woman who climbed out of one cockpit was Amelia Earhart, the pilot was Wilmer Stultz. The third person was Louis Gordon.

She was the first woman to fly the Atlantic. Stultz had been a great feat of flying because he had come down only a few miles from his objective.

And when you remember that they took off from Newfoundland with a fog bank in front of them and knifed their way blindly across the wide reaches of the uncharted Atlantic the praise of the experts was justified.

It was a groping flight, but Stultz maneuvered his craft so expertly and checked his instruments so closely, he did not need sight to aid him. The plane broke through scudding clouds in those last moments in the air—and Stultz, for all practical purposes, had reached his goal as unerringly as a carrier pigeon. From all angles it was a perfect flight.

Amelia Earhart is still a flyer. But that isn't all. Even when she is flying an autogyro, her latest hobby, she is back home in New York most of the time. In November, 1930, she married George Palmer Putnam, the publisher, and since then she has been primarily a housewife.

Before she became a famous flyer she did social service work in Boston. There she learned the household arts: how to cook and do the things a good housewife must do. And her husband, who should know, says "she is a good cook."

Gordon Still Flies

He encourages her to fly. Even last summer when she cracked up in an autogyro at Detroit his confidence in her was unshaken, and of course she still believes in herself, still believes in flying.
Stultz and his mechanic, Gordon, paid a touching tribute to the memory of that intrepid flyer, Sir John Alcock, when they placed a wreath on his grave—and England applauded and appreciated.

Soon after his return to America, Gordon married Anna Bruce of Brookline, Mass and the millions who had cheered him laughed good-naturedly when he lost the engagement ring on the eve of the announcement. Since then he has been working an expert mechanic and a pilot around Chicago and in the east—but who recalls him now?

Wilmer Stultz (center) . . . was a "flyer's flyer," and made an almost perfect Atlantic crossing . . . yet he was killed in a crash soon afterward . . . Amelia Earhart, his passenger (upper left) is now happily married to Publisher George Palmer Putnam (upper right) . . . He encourages her to go on with auto-gyro flying (below).

Stultz's Tragic End

Wilmer Stultz came back to fame and a good position as a pilot. Then one day in July, 1929, he took off from Roosevelt Field with two passengers. No one knows exactly what happened, but suddenly the biplane he was flying went into a spin. The spectators watching weren't even then unduly alarmed, for they knew an expert like Stultz could bring a plane out of practically any spin.

But the plane quivered, nosed over and dropped like a stone. Stultz tried to straighten it out but could not. It crashed, Stultz and the two passengers were killed.

Except among air-men Stultz is practically forgotten now, although in the annals of aviation he will always be remembered as one of a few pilots who made a perfect trans-oceanic flight in the days when hazards were greater than they will be in the future. Those immortal lines that Thomas Gray wrote nearly 200 years ago seem particularly applicable:

"And like the inevitable hour
The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

A big mail ship drops out of the skies on German airports. Its pilot dies the mail, dependable, steady. Once he flew to fame over the Atlantic. Who is he? Read tomorrow's "Air Paths of Glory" in The Dixon Evening Telegraph.

Coast Guard, died yesterday following an attack of influenza.

He was only 58 years old, but besides establishing a record for length of service in command of the sea patrol, had acquired a notable reputation in active service on both Atlantic and Pacific. He was elevated to top rank by President Coolidge, and twice was reappointed by President Hoover.

He will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery Monday, following services at St. Margaret's church. His widow, Mrs. Clara P. Billard is the only survivor.

TODAY IS THE WORLD WAR ANNIVERSARY

OIL TANKER SUNK
On May 18, 1918, fighting on the western front was confined to raiding activities by both sides, with none of the raids being made in such force as to allow the attacking troops to hold such positions as they seized.

The American oil tanker William Rockefeller, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine, with the loss of three lives.

The Manchester Guardian announced that the treaty between England, France, Russia and Italy, by which Italy had entered the war on the side of the Allies, had been abrogated and replaced by a new treaty.

Reports from Russia said that German troops were continuing their advance into the Ukraine, despite protests by the Soviet governments.

WORLD PRAYER URGED BY POPE TO END ANARCHY

Pontiff Issues Encyclical On "Threatening Dangers"

Vatican City, May 18—(AP)—Pope Pius XI, in an encyclical issued today, called the world to prayer, penance and mortification to save itself from "the peril of terrorism and anarchy" and "the still graver evils that are threatening."

For this purpose he set aside a period of eight days for "reparation" on the Octave of the Feast of the Sacred Heart, beginning June 3.

In the encyclical, entitled "Charitas Christi"—Christ's Charity—he lists the causes of the present "evils" that are crushing humanity.

Causes Of Evils

They are, he said, greed, the accumulation of the wealth of nations in the hands of a small group of individuals, exaggerated nationalism, unequal distribution of wealth, Communism and "the revolt of man against God."

From greed, he said, arises "the mutual distrust that casts a blight on all human dealings." He reiterated the words of St. Paul: "The desire of money is the root of all evils."

Turning the point of his criticism equally upon Communists and speculators, the Pontiff said a small group of holders of the world's wealth "manipulate the markets of the world at their own caprice to the immense harm of the masses."

"Even those very few," he added, "who with their speculations were and are in great part a cause of so much woe, are themselves quite often the first and most notorious victims, dragging down with themselves into the abyss the fortunes of countless others."

"Profiting by so much economic distress," he added, "and so much moral disorder, the enemies of all social order, be they called Communists or any other name, boldly set about breaking through every restraint."

Most Dreadful Evil

"This is the most dreadful evil of our times, for they destroy every bond of law, human or divine; they engage openly and in secret in a relentless struggle against God himself; they carry out the diabolical program of wresting from the hearts of all, even from children, all religious sentiment; for well they know that when once belief in God has been taken from the heart of mankind they will be entirely free to work out their will."

"Thus we see today what was never before seen in history—the satanical banners of war against God and against religion brazenly unfurled to the winds in the midst of all peoples and in all parts of the earth."

Of exaggerated nationalism, the Pontiff said: "There is no excess that will not seem justified."

"Abusing this love of country," he said, leads to "hatred, driving all to destruction." "Sacred principles are trampled upon" and "polluted."

Referring to the unequal distribution of wealth, he recalled that previously he had advocated energetically "a more equitable distribution of the goods of the earth" to restore health "to the ailing social body."

Tax Problems In This State

By PROF. M. H. HUNTER
University of Illinois
24. Overlapping Political Jurisdictions.

When one looks at a map of Illinois he wonders at how fearfully and wonderfully the different political units have been designed. Some counties are large and some are small, some are regular, some designed in fantastic shapes. And so it is with the townships, the school districts etc., throughout the same 18,000 separate political divisions, each with the power to levy and collect taxes. One wonders if an efficiency expert were called upon to reorganize the governmental units if the present arrangement would continue.

The different political units do not possess the same ability to provide government functions, yet most of them seem to be imbued with "Keeping up with the Joneses." This is especially noticeable in educational facilities. "Equality of educational opportunity" is a slogan one hears on every side. School districts cannot all support since counties, townships and school districts cannot all support the desired facilities an appeal is made for state aid.

In Illinois we have a state distributable fund which is used for the support of public education over the state. The nucleus of the fund is from a millage tax levied upon the assessed value of property. A tabulation of the counties of the state will show that only one county in the northern half of the state receives more from the fund than it pays into it, while only one county in the southern half of the state pays more into the fund than it gets from it.

The situation in Illinois well illustrates that central aid simply means that richer communities are giving support to poorer ones. Standards of living exist for governments just as well as for individuals. Individuals in the Ford class cannot drive Packards unless financial assistance comes from without. Likewise government units with small ability cannot go far in performing functions without outside aid.

Artificial lines known as political boundaries play a great part in tax systems. There is a North and South Dakota, support there were a North and South Illinois, with a line running across the present center. How different the whole situation would become. Then we would have South Illinois with few resources trying to keep pace with the activities of North Illinois, with large resources. Public revenues and expenditures are rendered more complicated by overlapping political jurisdictions.

ROCK ISLAND RY. ASKS PERMIT TO MERGE ITS LINES

Would Bring 7,834 Mi.
Of Railroad Under
One Corporation

Washington, May 18 —(AP)—The Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Company today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to consolidate all of its subsidiaries into one company to be known as the Pacific company.

The consolidation would bring 7,834 miles of railroad already operated by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific into one corporation and under one name.

The roads included are the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, the St. Paul & Kansas City Short Line Railway, the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf Railroad, The Rock Island, Arkansas & Louisiana Railroad, The Chicago, Rock Island & Gulf Railway, the Morris Terminal Railway, an Illinois corporation; the Peoria Terminal Company, the Peoria, Hanna City & Western Railroad, the Rock Island & Dardanelle, the Rock Island, Stuttgart & Southern, the Rock Island-Memphis Terminal Railway and the Rock Island-Omaha Terminal Railway.

The lines of the company extend through a dozen states in the west and southwest and are valued in the application at $512,939,972.

The Pacific Company, which would take over the properties of the roads and sink their identities into one corporation. All have been operated by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific under 999-year leases ever since 1911.

QUESTION ASKED BY PILATE WAS SERMON THEME

Overflow Crowd Heard
Grady Cantrell In Big Tabernacle

Once more the big tabernacle on West Boyd Street was crowded to overflowing at last night's service. It was Sunday School night and all the schools were largely represented having approximately eleven hundred in the delegations. The Church of God Sunday School won the final honor of first place having held it throughout the seven weeks of contest. The Christian church came second with the next highest percentage of membership. The Truth Seekers Class of Bethel church were present in a special delegation. A dozen people responded to the evangelist's appeal at the close of the sermon.

Special features of the musical program were the xylophone number by Dick Choate, and a trio by three children of the Brethren Sunday school Darlene Bender, Carolee Glessner and Charles Adams.

No collection was taken last night as it was announced that all the running expenses had been taken care of. The mercury in the big financial thermometer at the front of the building stood at the boiling point. All the church folks are happy over the financial victory.

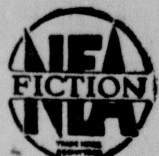

The revival has entered its eighth and final week. The series will come to a close on next Sunday night. There will be three services at the tabernacle that day. The cooperating churches will hold their Sunday School sessions and a brief worship period and then adjourn to the tabernacle. The doors will be open at 11:05 and the service will begin at 11:15 closing at noon. In the afternoon at 2:30 there will be a service for everybody. The closing service will begin at 7:00 with a great praise service led by Ray Harris and the great chorus choir.

A free-will offering will be received for the evangelist on Friday night and over Sunday. No pressure methods will be used but an opportunity will be given to everybody to contribute whatever amount they desire. It was announced that anyone who wishes to contribute to Rev. Cantrell's support, and may not be able to attend one of the closing meetings either hand the donation to one of the ministers or mail direct to Rev. Grady Cantrell, Hotel Dixon. Rev. Cantrell preached a strong sermon last night from Pilate's question at the trial of Jesus. "What then shall I do with Jesus who is called Christ?" That was the question Pilate had to answer 1900 years ago and it has been hurled down through the centuries to us. If Pilate had stood on the threshold of the palace and shook his fist in the face of that blood-thirsty gang and said Jesus is on the square and the only way you will get Him out is to take Him over my dead body he could have written his name on the role of fame and glory his way into the 11th chapter of Hebrews. But no! He was a cheap, spineless, cowardly 244, fourth ward politician, who played for popularity and hung his mug in the Devil's Rogues Gallery along with Herod, Kaiser Bill, and that gang. Don't slap Jesus in the face, so some will slap you on the back.

Following is a brief synopsis of the sermon: "If we could have stood in the streets of Jerusalem 1900 years ago we would have seen a seething, surging, angry mob shaking the Warren tells Heath that Susan cares for another. Almost on the eve of the wedding Bob comes to see her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLIII

ERNEST HEATH did not fully understand the impulse that drove him to call on Susan before dinner. He could not have explained it to himself, but here he was rushing along in a taxi through the familiar, shabby streets. It was curious, he mused, that this drab environment could have produced a girl such as Susan. You could be proud of her in any company, he thought. He gloated at the prospect of showing her the world. It would be like opening a trinket box to the gaze of an admiring child. At this time next week she would be his bride. They would be sailing on blue waters with the future stretching ahead of them a paradise.

He felt suddenly humble, suddenly afraid. He had never expected life to be so good to him. He had given up hope and now, amazingly, a whole new vista had been shown him. All at once he was impatient to see Susan and tell her something of what was in his heart. He was not an inarticulate man but he was shy and it was often difficult for him to conquer his inbred New England reserve.

It was early spring twilight. The western sky deepened from rose to mauve and then to lilac. Almost without warning night closed in. The taxi jolted over the old pavements.

Heath dismissed the driver at the corner and paid the fare. Suddenly he began to feel rather foolish about his unannounced visit. It was simply that he had felt he must see Susan at once. There was no rhyme or reason to the impulse. He was moved by one of those inexplicable promptings which occasionally change and color an entire life.

His steps quickened as he came in sight of the Miltons' house and he went up the steps lightly, on eager feet. His hand was almost on the brass knob of the door opening into the tiny vestibule when he stopped, arrested.

That was Susan's voice. There was trouble in it and pain, too. Without meaning to, without conscious design Heath listened. What was that she was saying?

"I can't possibly do it now! I've given my word and I mustn't go back on it."

The listener stiffened at the reply. A man's voice, pleading yet dominant, said: "But darling, we've gone all over this before. There's no sense in it. It would be much more honorable for you to tell him you love someone else. He'd be a good sport about it."

THE girl's voice sounded as though she had been weeping. "I can't! I can't! I tell you! Why did we find each other too late? Why couldn't you have told me all this last summer? It would have been so perfect then."

The man in the shadow waited to hear no more. Quietly he went down the steps. So that was the way of it then! He felt no anger, only a deep and abiding sadness. What a fool he had been! Of course the child would turn to someone of her own age. Why shouldn't she? It was as natural as a flower turning toward the sun. He had been a blind and selfish idiot not to have seen it earlier. Warring had warned him and had been right.

For a long while Heath pondered how to find a graceful way out. He must manage to save Susan's pride as well as his own. A servant tip-toeing into the library late that night, found Heath still at his writing table. The crumpled papers in the wastebasket testified to agonies of literary composition. Heath was folding several thick, creamy sheets and putting them into an envelope. "I wish you would take this and mail it at once, Simon. I don't want it to wait until morning. And by the way," as the servant turned to go, "I'll be leaving tomorrow instead of Monday, so be sure to have my things packed by noon."

Simon began to ask questions but his employer stopped him brusquely.

"I've changed my plans, that's all," he said. "Get along like a good boy and drop this box."

After the man had left Heath sat for a long while with his head in his hands.

SUSAN let herself into the house and stood for a moment to gain time. She dared not show her flushed face and luminous eyes to the inquiring Miltons before she had a chance to compose herself. She had sent Bob away. All afternoon they had walked in the park, scarcely knowing which way their steps led them. They had argued but Susan had been adamant. It was no use. She could not break her word at the eleventh hour.

There was something of the martyr in her, perhaps. At any rate she had not been able to bring herself to give Bob the promise he wanted. He had been angry. He had said some cruel and cutting things. And then, looking sideways at her downcast profile, he had begged her pardon. There had been a poignant sweetness about this intermittent quarreling and reconciliation. A true lovers' meeting. But Susan had stiffened her spine and sent him away at last. What she was to do later when her high courage ebbed, she did not dare to think.

Mrs. Milton was in the dining room helping a young colored girl to lay the table cloth.
